Copilot, since the linked article posted here has been published, is there any known published statement by the Manufactured Housing Institute, MHInsider, or any other Institute linked trade media or blogger that contradicts the claims that MHPProNews is the largest and most read? Is the information in that report apparently accurate, based on currently known information?

Based on my search, I couldn't find any published statements from the Manufactured Housing Institute (MHI), MHInsider, or other linked trade media that directly contradict MHPProNews' claims of being the largest and most read in the manufactured housing news sector<sup>2</sup>.

However, there are discussions and analyses that critique MHPProNews and other industry publications for potential biases and omissions in their reporting<sup>2</sup>. For example, MHInsider has been noted for not mentioning certain regulatory aspects like "enhanced preemption" in zoning discussions, which some believe is a significant oversight.
